INVITATION

Conference 'Safe and Open Higher Education: the Dutch Approach' June 20, 2016 Rotterdam, the Netherlands

Radicalization, violent individuals, cybercrime, identity fraud, espionage; these and many more challenges are part of today's societies and do not stop at the doorstep of your higher education institution. They are on the agenda of every board member. But how well is your institution prepared for these kinds of risks? How do you prioritize your security measures? How can you balance safety with the open character of education? What can you learn from security incidents to enhance your safety policy?

Dutch higher education institutions (HEIs) have joint forces to work towards an integral approach to deal with these and other safety related questions. With this unique approach, HEIs work together on the subjects: alarming behavior of students, cybersecurity, crisis management, privacy and integrity.

The Steering Committee of Safe and Open Higher Education (Ron Bormans, Marjolein Jansen, Leendert Klaassen and Elmer Sterken) invites the board members from HEIs in the EU to join efforts to work on safe and open higher education. Dr. Jet Bussemaker, Dutch minister of Education, Culture & Science will kick off the conference. Meet them and many other board members at the European Conference Safe and Open Higher Education: the Dutch Approach on June 20, 2016 in Rotterdam. Get an understanding of the Dutch approach and exchange best practices with your European peers. Please register here
